

Adstream Broadcast Solutions

AdDelivery Radio

Speed of sound to your campaign management and delivery

Adstream's AdDelivery Radio solution is the leading provider of radio delivery services, making the usual complex process of ordering, distributing and storing radio campaigns seamless.

On receiving an order, our dedicated specialist team puts each ad through rigorous quality checks in order to ensure each and all files are broadcast-ready and verified against each station's network.

Once all the requirements are met, your ads will be immediately available to your desired destinations.

AdDelivery Radio solution automatically sends a detailed report when all your ads have been downloaded by the stations. You can also track each order online, easily monitoring its progress.

All of your radio commercials can be automatically stored in AdBank for easy reference, retrieval and collaboration, alongside your TV and Print ads from the same campaign.

AdDelivery Radio is a powerful solution that allows you to streamline the previously time-consuming and complex process of radio delivery, providing greater speed-to-market, visibility and control with the support of a dedicated specialist team.

What Our Clients Say

“ I've been using radio ads for almost 20 years now and I remember the day when to get the ads to the station meant a day or two on a courier. Well technology has obviously changed all that and we now have Adstream to get it to the stations not only on time, but with the quality assured – an important issue when time and money has been spent getting the spot to sound just right! Brad Power, Director Stellar Sound. ”
